TITLE: Unravel Me

AUTHOR: Tahereh Mafi

This book should not be given to children as it is contrary to our community's standards. This book conflicts with Fl. Statute 1003.46 and does NOT promote the benefits of abstinence OR monogamy. Character Juliet has sex with character Adam and later *knowingly also sleeps with his brother. ALSO: Children may be enticed to read later books in this series which are even more graphic and offensive to community standards – see "Defy Me." This book "Unravel Me" is polluted with profanity. This book trivializes alcohol use.

RE: POSITION PAPER - APPEAL REGARDING BOOK CHALLENGE:

TITLE: Thirteen Reasons Why

AUTHOR: Jay Asher

This book should not be given to children as it is contrary to our community's standards. We have a societal problem with teen sex and teen suicide. This book does nothing to alleviate these problems. The book violates Fl. Statute 847 AND idealizes suicide. If this book has any "therapeutic" value, the decision to share it with a minor should be made by a licensed therapist with the consent of their adult guardian(s). It is grossly irresponsible to let this fall into the hands of an innocent child.

TITLE: Fable

AUTHOR: Adrienne Young

This book should not be given to children as it is contrary to our community's standards. This book contains sex written with the intent to arouse the reader [erotica] and to suggest to minors that they should surrender to their emotional desires.

Here's most of the passage:

"I lifted onto my toes, pressing my mouth to his, and the boiling heat that had flooded into me underwater found me again, racing beneath every inch of my skin...His hands found my hips, and he walked me back until my legs hit the side of the bed...before he laid me down beneath him. His weight pressed down on top of me and I arched my back as his hands caught my legs and pulled them up around him..."

...his skin felt against mine...My head tipped back, and I pulled him closer so I could feel him against me. He groaned, his mouth pressed to my ear, and I tugged at the length of my shirt until I was pulling it over my head...his eyes running over every inch of me...I hooked my fingers into his belt...And when he kissed me again, it was slow. It was pleading.

...The smell of him and the drag of his fingers down my back. The taste of salt when I kissed his shoulder and the slide of his lips down my throat.”
