

Kagan

Proudly Presents Melissa Mulock

Melissa Mulock is currently a Learning Resource Specialist for a state grant funded project, FDLRS, in Florida. As a Learning Resource Specialist, Melissa leads professional learning opportunities and coaches educators throughout the state of Florida in the areas of Reading and Differentiated Instruction. Prior to leaving the classroom, she spent 12 years teaching reading and learning strategies to middle and high school students. Melissa earned her Bachelors of Science degree in Exceptional Student Education from the University of Central Florida. She was first introduced to Kagan Cooperative Learning Structures in 1999 during her first year of teaching and was hooked when she watched Laurie Kagan present a variety of structures to a large group of teachers. Since then, she has consistently implemented Kagan Structures in the classroom and professional development sessions. In 2003, Melissa earned the status of a Certified Strategic Instruction Model Professional Developer for the University of Kansas Center for Research on Learning. In 2004, she became a National Board Certified Teacher. She has a strong desire for learning, mentoring, and leading others to build positive relationships, and is looking forward to providing quality instruction.