ST. VINCENT'S
PRIMARY CARE

Dr. Deborah Weyer M.D., M.B.A.

Dr. Deborah Weyer is a general pediatrician with St. Vincent's Pediatrics in Clay County. She has extensive experience caring for medically complex children in the academic, community health and private health settings. Her areas of interest include identifying and treating children with learning disabilities and behavioral problems and addressing childhood obesity and its co-morbidities. While serving as Director of Faculty Group Practice in the General Pediatrics Division at the University of Florida, she collaborated with the Division of Pediatric Endocrinology, the Department of Psychology, the Division of General Pediatrics, and the Department of Agriculture & Health Sciences to develop a conceptual framework for treating pediatric obesity in the outpatient setting. Previously, while in private practice, she developed and implemented a twelve-week nutritional course for her patients and their families based upon ADA guidelines, believing that a family-centered approach to addressing complex behavioral issues is most effective. She also has an interest in using her previous business training and experience to help improve clinical health care delivery systems and enhance patient care. She has used the knowledge and skills acquired in these endeavors to develop this plan for a multi-tiered approach to patient care.

Katie Cannon. B.S.

Katie Cannon is a recent graduate of the University of Florida with a Bachelors of Science in Applied Physiology and Kinesiology and a specialization in Fitness and Wellness. While at UF, her studies also emphasized nutrition, psychology, and the disorders of eating. She is passionate about preventative medicine; more specifically, the use of exercise to combat and prevent disease. While at the University of Florida, she was a volunteer coach for Youth Combine, a youth fitness program targeted at the elimination of juvenile delinquency and pediatric obesity. She also completed an internship at St. Vincent's Riverside working in SVPC Physician Enterprise. Her assignments included population health management programs and patient centered medical home authentication.
