Melisa Collins | Director of School Programs

Melisa Collins, Director of School Programs with Beyond Technology Education, has been involved in education with both children and adults for over 20 years. With two teaching credentials and an M.S. in Education from California State University - Fullerton, Melisa began her career as a public school teacher. After teaching multiple grade levels, Melisa moved into the private business arena, where she became managing Director for a private learning center. In that position, she was responsible for business and marketing aspects of the center, as well as the academic success of more than 100 students. Melisa then discovered her love for teaching adults when she became a Corporate Training Manager, and Help Desk Manager, for the Information Technology department of Wyle Electronics, where she was responsible for training thousands of employees in a company roll-out of new Windows-based applications.

Working for Beyond Technology Education for the past 8 years, Melisa has developed an understanding of educational curriculum, technology knowledge, and teaching and communication skills. Melisa is very successful in training and developing teachers and designing integration for the classroom. She is an Authorized Google Education Trainer, and an Adjunct Professor with Point Loma Nazarene University.

Melisa lives with her husband in Laguna Niguel, California. They are the proud parents of a daughter who recently graduated from college and is currently living in San Diego.
